NEW FREIGHT SERVICE TO REACH ONTARIO

A. W. Lake, traveling agent of the Chicago & Northwestern railway was in Ontario Tuesday interviewing the local shippers and receivers of freight.
Among other announcements he had to make relative to transportation problems Mr. Lake said:

"We have inaugurated a new thru package car service from Chicago to Boise for the convenience of all the towns from Boise, to Weiser, which of course includes Ontario. These cars, there are two of them, leave Chicago every day run thru to Boise before breaking bulk so that there is but one transfer this side of Chicago.
The time varies from six to eight days to Boise and one to two days from Boise."

Mr. Lake expects to see a great deal of railroad building next year, especially that of siding and terminals as well as heavy increases in equipment. This is due to the prosperity the roads have enjoyed this year. After the war, he says that the roads will have to work to build up their local business to replace the traffic which will be diverted to the Panama canal when ships are released for that service.

How Huston Helped.

All the members of the Wilson cabinet, except Secretary of Agriculture Houston, were out on the stump during the campaign. If the truth were known, it is probable that Houston did as much as any member of the cabinet in the way of net results for Wilson.

DOLLARS FROM FORESIGHT.

The Farmer Who Notes Economic Changes Usually Makes the Profit.
[Prepared by United States department of agriculture.]

Perhaps the most conspicuous cause of success in farming is prompt and fitting change in type of farming in response to economic pressure as indicated by the market price of products as related to cost. The American farmer who is most successful usually senses the operation of economic forces long ahead of their neighbors. A large number of farmers change an old established system only when forced by dire necessity.

Not only is there the greatest opportunity to any individual farmer through

SPECIAL PRODUCTS FOR THE MARKET.

quickly modifying his organization in response to changed markets, but such readjustment is of great value to the whole community, for such action in time becomes corrective of the changed condition from which it sprang. Let us assume, for instance, that there is a community engaged largely in live stock production and that through some cause feed prices advance to such a point that there is more money in selling the raw product than in feeding.
Under such conditions a large number of farseeing farmers will quickly curtail their live stock industry and become sellers of raw feed products.
This in turn has a tendency to reduce feed prices and to increase the price of live stock products, thus bringing about the former balance.

Spraying For Codling Moth.

In answer to a correspondent who asks when it is necessary to spray for the codling moth and whether spraying for the San Jose scale will hurt trees already in bloom, Zoologist H. A.
Surface of the Pennsylvania department of agriculture says:

"It is always considered necessary to spray all apple, pear and quince trees for this pest when they are bearing fruit. If there is no fruit on your trees there is no need to spray for codling moth. As you doubtless know, this is the insect that makes wormy apples, pears and quinces. Every good fruit grower sprays for this pest, if for no other. The first spraying is made shortly after the petals or flowers fall, and the second spraying is made about a month from that date.
The material that should be used is one gallon and one quart of strong lime sulphur solution, either homemade or commercial, in forty-nine gallons of water, and to this is added either one pound of dry arsenate of lead or two pounds of arsenate of lead paste. For the second spray use the same material as for the first."

"Where you have much San Jose scale present it is a good plan to wash all the bark of trunks or twigs that can be reached with a paint brush dipped in very strong lime sulphur solution or very strong thick soap solution, or spray the infested trees when the young are crawling on the bark with tobacco decoction, kerosene emulsion or soap solution. After the leaves drop this fall spray again with the strong lime sulphur solution."

"THREE C'S" OF MILK CARE.
Dairy specialists have evolved a simple little formula for the care of milk in the home, and the same formula will apply to keeping milk anywhere. It is the rule of the "Three C's," the "C's" standing for "Clean" and "Cold" and "Covered." Excellent rules for the dairyman everywhere, even though they were written with the consumer of the milk in mind. That first rule should be one of the cowkeeper's articles of faith, the second one means a well filled icehouse for the farm, and the third and last means care and forethought.
